Rainbow – the chakra system

Black has no stripe of its own in the rainbow. We usually perceive it on a surface when little visible light returns from it to the eyes relative to its surroundings. It is not one separate wavelength nor the "lowest spiritual frequency". In some contemporary approaches it accompanies the root chakra and the themes of protection, boundaries and grounding.

The whole rainbow as a map of questions

Red · root
Support, safety, presence. Ask yourself. What can I lean on?

Orange · sacral
Experiencing, pleasure, sensuality. Ask yourself. What does me good?

Yellow · solar plexus
Self-worth, will, decision-making. Ask yourself. What do I want to choose for myself?

Green · heart
Closeness, kindness, relationships. Ask yourself. Where can I be open and still stay with myself?

Blue · throat
Voice, expression, communication. Ask yourself. What do I need to say?

Indigo · third eye
Inner vision, intuition, discernment. Ask yourself. What is beginning to dawn on me?

Violet · crown
Transcendence, meaning, connection. Ask yourself. What gives me a wider sense of meaning?

Black · beside the root
Protection and boundaries. Ask yourself. Do I need to show something, or keep it to myself for now?

© 2026 MatyRoss · The Art of Wholeness. All rights reserved. Copying, distribution or any other use of the content without the author's written permission is not allowed.

The root chakra and boundaries

Chakras come from the Indian yogic and tantric tradition. The first chakra is called Muladhara, sits at the base of the spine and in classical texts red is linked with it. Black is added to it only in some contemporary spiritual approaches, as a symbol of protection, boundaries and grounding.

That does not mean black is a colour of "bad energy" or that liking black shows a closed chakra. Nor is the claim that black fabric automatically absorbs other people's negativity a proven physical effect. Absorbing light and a personal sense of protection are different things.

When black does you good. Firmness and a striking line feel pleasant. In it you feel well put together and private, and you can be seen in it, or on the contrary need not be at the centre of attention.

When black does not do you good. Everything blends together, it weighs on you or reminds you of a period you want to step away from. These are not proofs of the state of a chakra, they are situations in which you can get to know yourself.

Protection that is not a wall

- Put it beside
  A black fabric next to a colour that attracts you. Perceive them for a while without looking for the right meaning.
- Take it in your hand
  A black scarf, a smooth stone or a piece of fabric as a personal symbol of privacy. Ask what you want to keep only to yourself today.
- Put it on
  Simple black clothes after a long period when you were constantly available. Less need to explain yourself.
- Put it in a room
  One black frame, shelf or lamp. A black frame does not behave like a black room.
- Paint it
  One decisive stroke on light paper. Notice your hand, the pressure and whether you want to continue.
- Switch off for a while
  Dimness can help create privacy and rest. Notice whether it feels pleasant.

© 2026 MatyRoss · The Art of Wholeness. All rights reserved. Copying, distribution or any other use of the content without the author’s written permission is not allowed.

When there is already too much black

Work with boundaries need not end in a firm "nobody in". Perhaps you do not need to share everything. But perhaps you are already hiding even what you would like to say. You do not need more black. You need to invite other colours.

- With red
  Do I feel support, or too much hardness?
- With pink or green
  Is there room for closeness?
- With blue
  Can I say something aloud?
- With yellow or white
  Do I see room for my own decision? Does a clear boundary suit me, or is the contrast too sharp?

This is inspiration from tradition, not treatment. It is not about measuring chakras. You notice how the relationship of colours affects you and what theme it reminds you of.

Picture it with an example

Next to black other colours can stand out strongly. Yellow starts to feel sharper, pink bolder, green may recall leaves emerging from shadow. These are possibilities for personal reading, not effects prescribed by a colour combination.

How to use this map

It is a way to sort out the themes you are living through. Do you add a colour because next to black you miss liveliness, or do you not need it because calm is enough? You choose the meaning. Both options can be fine.

Black has no place in the classical seven-colour map, not even an eighth.

© 2026 MatyRoss · The Art of Wholeness. All rights reserved. Copying, distribution or any other use of the content without the author’s written permission is not allowed.