Emotions and feelings

The same yellow can awaken joy in one of us and nervousness in another, sometimes even both in one day.

Emotions

Quick and strong reactions that can appear even before you realise them.

Joy and lightness

A feeling of brightening, as when the sun comes out. The body straightens up and a smile comes by itself.

And why?

It can recall experiences in which you felt good. When you bring home yellow tulips, it is not just their shade that delights you. You chose them, put them in a vase and did something nice for yourself.

If I asked you now

"When did you last just smile?"

Confidence and the courage to be seen

The wish to step out of line and say what I think. A feeling that I have the right to take my place.

And why?

Yellow is the lightest colour and the eye strays to it first. To be yellow is to be seen.

Ask yourself

"Where do I hide, even though I would like to shine?"

Ideas and intuition

Flashes and hunches. A feeling that I know, even though I could not explain it.

And why?

Jung linked intuition with gold or yellow, because it is "felt as radiant".

Try asking yourself

"When did I last do something even despite my inner voice saying "This is going to be a disaster"?"

Optimism, or compulsory positivity?

Great and positive – but at what cost?

And why?

Yellow is linked with joy and humour. That easily turns into a role that is hard to step out of afterwards.

Ask yourself

"Is my good mood real, or am I acting it?"

© 2026 MatyRoss · The Art of Wholeness. All rights reserved. Copying, distribution or any other use of the content without the author's written permission is not allowed.

Feelings and experience

Less immediate than emotions. They say more about how we feel in a situation, in the body and in relation to ourselves.

Nervousness and an overloaded head

The head is running at full revs and there is already a proper knot in the belly. A feeling that I cannot cope with anything, that I cannot keep up.

And why?

In tradition yellow is linked with the area of the belly (the solar plexus) and with personal power, but also with worries. A rich yellow can drive and chase us quite a bit.

A question for you

"What happens in your belly when you are supposed to say your opinion, or stand behind it?"

Envy and bitterness

A sharp feeling that the other woman has more (courage, strength, simply everything...), and straight after it shame. In yellow there is simply also a bit of sour green.

And why?

In Europe yellow has long been linked also with envy and hypocrisy, since the Middle Ages for example with Judas.

If I asked you now

"Whom do you envy lately? And for what? And why?"

When you suddenly crave yellow

After days full of duties you may be drawn to something fresh and playful. Yellow may remind you of summer, warmth or moments when you had more time for yourself. Perhaps that is exactly the feeling that is missing.

Why, on the contrary, does its cheerfulness bother me?

When you are sad, tired or under pressure, an impression that is too cheerful can feel alien. As if the surroundings were telling a story that does not meet your inner world at the moment.

Perhaps you were told for a long time "smile", "think positive" or "others have it worse". Then a striking yellow can carry for you also an unpleasant reminder that a good mood is expected of you.

© 2026 MatyRoss · The Art of Wholeness. All rights reserved. Copying, distribution or any other use of the content without the author's written permission is not allowed.

My yellow is not the same as your yellow

The colour itself experiences nothing. You experience it. When we first see a colour together with something strong (a smell, a face, a situation, a word), the experience sticks to it. The colour then becomes a shortcut. One glimpse is enough and the body knows whether it can relax or should pull back.

- A yellow note with a task
  For one a help so she does not forget, for another an endless list that cannot be completed.
- A yellow marker
  For one learning and clear notes, for another exam stress.
- A yellow warning sign
  For one safety and attention, for another a reminder of danger.
- A yellow kitchen at grandmother's
  For one home and warmth, for another something old she wants to run away from.

Some colours we put aside. After a hard period we get rid of a dress or avoid a place. It is a way of protecting ourselves. And when we are ready, yellow often comes back by itself, first as a bouquet on the table, then as a scarf.

© 2026 MatyRoss · The Art of Wholeness. All rights reserved. Copying, distribution or any other use of the content without the author's written permission is not allowed.